Chinese Report Sea Battle Off Shanghai

YANKES HOLD FAST PACE IN MANILA MARCH

Quickening Campaign On Luzon Brings Capture Of Clark Airfields

PLANES POUND BATAAN

Japs Expected To Stand At Pampanza River, 26 Miles From Capital

By United Press
American troops pushed within less than 40 miles of Manila today after capturing the vital Clark fields, greatest air base in the Western Pacific, to open the way for increased aerial blows on Japanese bases strung along and near the China coast.

At the same time, the Chinese army newspaper Sao Tang Pao reported without confirmation that 50 American and Japanese warships battled for nine hours in the East China sea within 300 miles of Shanghai Tuesday in the biggest naval engagement since last October.

The engagement ended, the newspaper said, when the Japanese forces fled to their homeland, some 650 miles to the northeast. Pacific Fleet headquarters did not comment on the Chinese report, although units of Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet were known to be operating off the Ryukyu islands, near the scene, on Monday.

Campaign Quickens

The quickening campaign on Luzon, which brought the conquest of Clark Field's dozen airstrips and nearby Fort Stotsenburg, carried American troops within 20 miles of Manila bay. The offensive was expected to make rapid progress without a major battle until it reaches at least Calumpit on the Pampanza river, 26 miles northwest of Manila.

Capture of Clark Field, which probably can be restored quickly to operational condition, was announced by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

MacArthur's aerial forces again joined with bombers and fighters from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' Pacific Fleet command to hammer the Japanese from Bataan and Corregidor on Luzon through Formosa to Iwo Jima in the Volcanos. Nimitz disclosed that American warships teamed with B-29 Superfortresses and B-24 Liberators in delivering a heavy bombardment of Iwo, stepping stone island half way between Saipan and Tokyo.

T. J. PENDERGAST MAY DIE BEFORE PROBATION ENDS

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 26—T. J. Pendergast, 72, former political boss who was convicted of income tax evasion, is seriously ill in Mendon hospital and close associates fear he might not live until his federal court probation expires in May, it was reported.

Pendergast, onetime maker of governors and senators who ruled the Kansas City Democratic machine, was taken to the hospital early this week and his physician reported he was "a very sick man."

It was understood he was being given glucose feedings and his weight, formerly 250 pounds, had dropped to 150.

Pendergast has been ill since 1940 when he began his 15-months prison sentence, but his condition had not been considered serious.

War Against Japs May Be Among Subjects At Big Three Conference

LONDON, Jan. 26—Diplomatic quarters said today that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill will discuss the war against Japan with Premier Stalin at the impending "Big Three" conference despite Russia's present neutrality in the Far Eastern struggle.

Informants said Stalin would be given a thorough review of Allied progress in the Pacific and Burma. Soviet military leaders in turn may offer their suggestions, it was said.

There has been widespread unofficial speculation in diplomatic and military circles that Russia may join the Allies against Japan after victory over Germany. Japanese broadcasts have betrayed uneasiness over the possibility that Russia may exercise her right to terminate the Soviet-Japanese friendship pact next April.

Pact Nears End
If not denounced in April, the pact would be renewed automatically for another five years.

The main topic of discussion for the three statesmen, however, obviously will be Germany. They are expected to complete plans for the final joint assaults to drive the Reich into unconditional surrender and to seek agreements upon methods for destroying utterly her power to wage future wars.

Many military experts in London believed that Russia will be unable to reach Berlin in her present offensive and must await a final east-west assault in the Spring to finish the war.

SENATE READY TO REPUDIATE WALLACE IDEAS

Committee To Okeh George Bill Divorcing Loan Agency From Job

MAY THEN GAIN POST

Left Wingers Rallying To Support Of Idol With Full Authority

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—The senate commerce committee is scheduled today to repudiate former Vice President Henry A. Wallace's political and social philosophies in a vote to remove lending agencies from the commerce department before he takes over that cabinet post.

The committee has agreed to vote today on the George bill to divorce The Federal Loan Administration from the department before considering Wallace's nomination to be commerce secretary. Committee members predicted confidently that the George bill would be reported favorably to the senate.

Committee Chairman Josiah W. Bailey, D., N. C., said a vote might be taken on Wallace's nomination to the cabinet today after the George bill is disposed of. Some of the anti-Wallace senators would prefer to keep the nomination pigeon-holed in committee until the George bill has been passed.

To Speed Action

Bailey said that if there was to be delay in acting on a nomination to a cabinet post, the delay should come on the floor of the senate rather than in committee. When the nomination is considered by the committee, the question will be whether it shall be reported to the senate favorably or unfavorably.

If the lending agencies—multi-billion dollar enterprises—are separated from the commerce department, much of the opposition to Wallace's confirmation to that cabinet post will be gone. Typical of the attitude of conservative senators who fear Wallace would "experiment" with the money power of the lending agencies, was Sen. Millard E. Tydings, D., Md.

Tydings said he would vote for the George bill and if it is approved would vote for Wallace's confirmation as secretary of commerce. If the George bill were reported (Continued on Page Two)

$8,500 EVASION OF TAX LAID TO HAROLD ICKES

CHICAGO, Jan. 16—Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes today was accused of evading payment of more than $8,500 in real estate taxes in 1943 and 1944 by filing a false affidavit of rent received from a Loop business building which he owns.

Cook County Assessor John S. Clark said an investigation by his office showed that Ickes had listed rental from the building at $24,000 in 1943, whereas the actual amount was $61,350, and had specified that the five-story structure had only three stories.

On the basis of a sworn complaint from Ickes, the 1943 assessed valuation was cut from $527,378 to $414,778, Clark said. He ordered the old taxes restored for 1945 and a public hearing scheduled in the case.

Ickes inherited the State street building in downtown Chicago from his first wife, Mrs. Hanna Wilmarth Ickes, who died in an automobile accident in 1935.

NELSON SOUNDS CHINESE PRAISE

Oriental Coordinated And Putting Full Weight In War, FDR Advised

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Donald M. Nelson has reported to President Roosevelt that China, with the aid of American experts, has now coordinated her economic war effort "for the first time" and is "throwing its weight into the job of winning the war," the White House revealed today.

The former war production chief, now Mr. Roosevelt's personal trouble shooter in the Far East, gave his optimistic appraisal in a report submitted to the White House Dec. 20, covering the work in China by his economic mission and the military mission headed by Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, now ambassador to China.

The White House made public only parts of the report, saying that some sections could not be released "until such time as the military situation permits."

Nelson said frankly that when he first reached China last September, he was disturbed by the "relative lack of constructive war effort." But since that time, he added, the situation has been "largely corrected" and the Chinese government is beginning to swing solidly into the job of smashing Japan.

He pointed out that in his November talks with Chinese leaders, "postwar questions were put aside by mutual agreement." Later in his report, however, Nelson proposed that this government aid China after the war on a realistic and "sound business basis" so that she may "begin to replace Japan as the leading industrial nation of the Orient."

Nelson foresaw "chances of genuine cooperation" between the Chinese national government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and the United States.

He said that the Japanese had flown two vastly improved, speedy planes against our aerial forces recently, and the enemy was expected to have jet-propelled planes in the air soon.

The new Japanese planes Ramsey said, are fighters speed-rated at more than 400 miles an hour and probably carrying ultra-modern equipment. He said the Japanese were known to have had access to German research in jet propulsion, and could be expected to use this type craft against us.

In contrast, Ramsey said, the United States has six new model planes in construction, all of them of "greatly increased performance," and one of them jet-propelled. Ramsey praised the new Navy aircraft but warned that the Japanese were seriously challenging "our superiority" in aircraft design.

Soviet spearheads have penetrated the Polish-German border area beyond Poznan to within a little more than 90 miles of Berlin, the German Trans-Ocean News Agency said today. Other Soviet columns drove into the eastern outskirts of Poznan and flanked the city on each side, while in Silesia, Berlin acknowledged that the Oder River line had been broken in several places.

On the Western Front, the American Ninth Army went on the offensive with an advance to the Roer river north of Linnich, and the British Second Army reached the Wurm river on a two-mile stretch after an advance of more than a mile which overran six more German villages. The LONDON, Jan. 26—Nazi radio propagandists trying to rally the Germans for a stand against the Russians told them today that their last chance was at hand.

"This is our last chance, and we shall see that the enemy will not get his way," a commentator said in a talk on the German home service radio. "The road to Siberia is harder and longer than all our present suffering."

He recalled what Frederick the Great told one of his doubtful ministers—"If misfortune should befall us, bear it in high spirits"—and added, "that is all I can say to you."

Seventh Army in Alsace stalled the German offensive north of Strasbourg with a counter-attack which won back much of the ground yielded to the Germans.

Moscow Mum
The Russian approach to the frontier of the Reich proper was not confirmed by Moscow, but the German news agency said two flying columns were intercepted and "destroyed" after they had driven close to Brandenburg province. One spearhead was halted short of the German town of Driesen, 53 miles northwest of Poznan and 94 miles from Berlin, transocean said. Another reached Bzyszyn, 58 miles east of Frankfurt-on-Order. A third column was reported to have reached the area of Schneidemuhl in Germany, west of captured Bydgoszcz (Bromberg).

jected, Tidyings said he would vote against confirmation.

Ability Questioned

"Until it is done (approval of the George bill), Tidyings said, 'I do not feel that the best interests of the country would be served by appointing him as secretary of commerce with the responsibility of administering the billions of dollars of loans our government has made and will make in the future.'"

Wallace's powerful left wing friends are rallying to save the lending agencies for him. But they were caught off balance by the sudden attack of the conservatives, begun last Sunday when Secretary of Commerce Jesse H. Jones made public an exchange of letters with President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt's letter fired Jones as secretary of commerce and advised him that Wallace wanted the job and had earned it by his 1944 campaign efforts. Jones wrote back that he would quit but could not agree that Wallace was suited for the lending responsibilities attached to the secretaryship.

Mr. Roosevelt sent the nomination to the senate on Monday and Sen. Walter F. George, D. Ga., immediately introduced his bill to separate the lending agencies from the department. Jones and George testified before the committee Tuesday, emphasizing the enormous powers implicit in direction of the lending agencies and their belief that Wallace was unfit.

Wallace testified yesterday, asserting that he would use those powers for the good of the American people and to obtain the objectives of employment, housing and well being set forth by Mr. Roosevelt as the people's bill of rights. Wallace adherents considered summoning other witnesses to support their man, but apparently were talked out of it.

Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and other labor leaders and political groups, including the Communist Political Association and several liberal newspapers, are battling to save the department for Wallace, intact. Murray has called on CIO members to harangue their congressmen with telegrams of protest against the George bill.

The conservative bloc was confident, however, that they had the votes either to enact the George bill or to prevent Wallace's confirmation. Passage of a bill through congress, however, requires some little time. There seemed to be scant doubt that the committee vote today would be a repudiation of Wallace and, in effect, of the left wing of which he is the political idol. But if senate and house consideration of the George bill is prolonged, the New Deal wing of the administration party will have time to organize its attack, which is about the only strategy they can undertake now.

There had been some question whether Wallace would accept the commerce portfolio if it were shorn of the great powers reposing there under Jones. But Wallace told the committee that even under those circumstances he would accept the post—for the duration of the war.

COLD WEATHER WILL CONTINUE IN THIS AREA

Continued cold weather can be expected in Circleville and Pickaway county, possibly accompanied by light snow, the weather bureau predicted Friday.

While some sections of Ohio reported snowfalls ranging up to five inches only a light snow fell here Thursday night. Low temperature Friday morning was 18 degrees and Thursday's high was 25.

The light snow did not affect main highways, most of which are clear, but it added a new coating to sidewalks which are still dangerous.

Snow ranged from an inch in depth at Marietta to five inches in the vicinity of Bowling Green and covered the state north of a line marked by Van Wert, Delaware, New Lexington and Marietta. Some highways were closed by drifts in the northern part of the state but all main highways were open to traffic.

At Columbus city and state engineers joined the state board of health in a survey of private wells in and about the city in an effort to supplement the city's dangerously low water supplies. Extended cold weather is expected to make even more critical the water situation there.

eralissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and the Chinese communists. Friction between these two factors has prevented employment of China's full military strength against the Japanese.

Nelson said that three things—appointment of Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer as U. S. commander in the Chinese theatre, naming of Hurley as ambassador and the arrival in China of an American War Production mission—had led to seven specific and "significant measures" to tighten the Chinese war effort, there were:

1. "Advance steps were taken to check the Japanese advance."

2. "The Chinese war production board was established and is functioning" with American deputies on the board to advise on problems of policy and operation.

3. "An American technical production mission has begun work in China," including five steel production experts and one alcohol production specialist.

4. "War production requirements have been financed" with four Chinese government banks contracting to lend $10,000,000,000 in Chinese national currency to the Chinese WPB for financing essential production. Interest rates for war production loans have been cut.

5. "Additional transportation facilities have been allocated to China."

6. "Shifts were made in the Chinese cabinet with a view to strengthening the war effort."

Nelson explained that these shifts benefited "conversations between the national government and Communist leaders looking toward war cooperation."

7. "Moves have been made to bolster Chinese civilian morale."

"The feeling that China's economy is being strengthened and that the country's productive ability is growing will do more than any amount of propaganda to raise the morale of the Chinese people and hasten them for a sustained and intensified war effort," Nelson said.

east of Berlin, others swept around it on the north and south in a move to envelop the city before storming it.

Resistance Stiffens

German resistance was reported stiffening on the threatened approaches to the Reich, and hoarded reserves of air power were thrown into action in an effort to halt the Russian advance. Berlin disclosed that perhaps 3,000 fighters and bombers had been put into the battle all along the Eastern Front.

Moscow at the same time spoke of "huge" Soviet plane formations on the attack, indicating that violent air battles were in progress. The fighting in Silesia centered on German efforts to hold Breslau and the Oder river line above and below that city. The Russians were closing in on Breslau from the east, north and south and had it under heavy artillery fire. Soviet troops were reported to have fought into that part of the city on the east bank of the Oder.

In East Prussia, Berlin indicated that the province had been cut off by a Soviet advance to the Baltic between Elbing and Königsberg. The Moscow communiqué did not claim that, but said Soviet troops were three miles from the Königsberg-Danzig railway at Preusschen southeast of Albing. Other Russian forces were moving on Königsberg along a 20-mile front and Berlin indicated they had reached the city's outskirts.

Advance In West

The latest Allied advance on the western front was made by the 102nd infantry division of the Ninth Army, which added another five square miles to the American line along the west bank of the Roer 27 miles from Cologne to the unopposed advance across the Wurm river just north of Linnich. Brachelen, 10 miles inside Germany, was taken. The British advance to the Wurm wiped out all of the German bridgehead west of the Roer except for a strip less than a mile deep.

In Alsace the Seventh Army threw the Germans back across the Moder river, restoring the American defense line east of Haguenau, and retook part of the Uhlwiler and Ohlungen forests west of Haguenau, but the Germans still held their bridgehead across the Moder in the latter area.

The German DNB News Agency reported American armored forces had struck out from the former Ardennes bulge in a new attack on a 30-to-35-mile front in Belgium and eastern Luxembourg. Latest American field dispatches did not mention such an attack, but told of advances of a mile and a half to within sight of the Our river bordering Germany.

STALIN OFFERS AID TO RESTORE DEAD WARSAW

MOSCOW, Jan. 26—Marshal Stalin has promised the Poles all possible aid in the resurrection of a dead Warsaw. Sygmun Modzelewsky, ambassador of the Lublin provisional government to Moscow, said today.

Modzelewsky has just returned from Warsaw, where no single house is intact, there is no heat, no gas and no electricity, he said at a press conference.

He said Premier Boleslaw Bierut and Premier Edward Osobka-Morawski of the Lublin government came to Moscow and met with Stalin's pledge to rush all possible assistance, especially food, medicines, prefabricated houses and transport.

Although the Red Army found in Warsaw only a few inhabitants who were there illegally, several tens of thousands now have returned from the suburbs. Modzelewsky said. He said upward of 1,000 mines were being exploded daily in Warsaw, and only those persons able to help with the cleanup were permitted in the city so far.

Lacking quarters, the Lublin government is unable to establish itself in Warsaw, but had sent a committee to represent it in the administration of the city.

up the money, to return him for trial as a bigamist.

Gamble Of Love

If Van Wie is convicted, they'll get their money back, McDonald said, but if they don't it'll be love's lure lost.

Mrs. Juliana Van Wie, who filed suit for divorce against the ex-lion tamer at Inglewood, Calif., and tipped off several of his other wives that he was not their sole mate, indicated that she wasn't interested.

"There was something about him that made you do things you didn't want to do, but I never want to see him again," Mrs. Voloshin Van Wie said.

Van Wie said she was sort of funny about money. "She gave 10 per cent of my money to the church. She hid the rest and told me I didn't have any. Life with her was unbearable."

Van Wie, interviewed in his cell, tried hard to remember just whom he had married and whom he hadn't. To the best of his memory he promised to love honor and cherish, in this order:

Marriage List

1. Elizabeth Kexel in Milwaukee, in 1904. "She ran off with another man. She was just a small town girl, about 20, said Van Wie.

2. Clara Helise in Milwaukee in 1911. Mrs. Helise said in Chicago he never did much to support their son, Francis Jr. now 31. Van Wie said Francis Jr. was a stepson.

3. Mabel Joyce in Minneapolis in 1922. "Mabel was 12 years younger than me. We did a mind reading act with a circus before I became a lion tamer. We drifted apart and

1 thought she was dead but I got a letter from her last April.

4. Sadie Levin near Reno in 1941. "She had brown hair. I sent her back to San Francisco from Los Angeles when I found out she was pregnant."

5. Juliana Vososhin, 1942. "If I hadn't left her I think she would have done me bodily harm."

6. Myrtle Martha Wheeler, Reno 1943. "She was a gold digger. I spent $600 on her before we were married."

7. Josephine Bergman in San Francisco, 1944. "I liked shows, she didn't. She liked to dance. I didn't. The only thing we both liked was, uh—card parties. I thought she was poor, but she had a lot of stocks and bonds. I didn't want her money but I thought she was wrong in leading me to believe she was poor."

8. Evelyn Brown, San Francisco 1944. That was true love. "She's little and blonde and real home-loving," said Van Wie. "I'm still in love with her. She was the love of my life."

Wife number 7 said she didn't doubt that. Last Christmas they opened their presents, then Van Wie took off the tags and took them over to wife number 8.

"He told me people on his streetcar gave them to him," said Mrs. Brown Van Wie.

Police said there was a Louise a Ruth and another name that Van Wie had reminded about to the discomfort of his wives, but he couldn't remember whether he had married them or not.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Christmas, 1944, will remain especially memorable to Mrs. Sarah C. Crites, who, at the age of 87, enjoyed her first Christmas tree. She said she never knew how one's home could be brightened up with a decorated tree. The tree was given to the lonely woman by her neighbors.

American and British armies were reported in the midst of a tremendous build-up of supplies similar to that in which the Russians engaged for five months of the Polish front before launching their present offensive.

Tentative plans for the western offensive have been shaped, but are subject to revision at the "Big Three" meeting to conform with the swiftly-changing situation.

As for the post-war future of Germany, the three powers were understood to be "not too far apart" on the disarming and control of a defeated Reich and full agreement will be sought.

Other political topics believed scheduled for discussion included the matter of voting under the Dumbarton Oaks world security plan, and the Polish, Yugoslav, and Greek questions.

Yank Fighting Germans Reminded of Home By Labels On Cans of Corn

Two labels from cans of corn packed in Pickaway county have found their way back to Circleville from the Belgium-German battle lines. A letter, addressed to "To Whom It May Concern, Mr. Harry Briggs, Pickaway Livestock Coop., Circleville, Ohio, U. S. A." arrived Thursday at the Cooperative association office on East Main street. The letter was written on the back of two labels from "Famous" brand, golden sweet corn, packed by the Esmeralda Canning Company, Circleville.

Author of the letter was Pvt. Frank P. Weber, who is serving with the 345th Infantry. His home is Marietta, Ohio, and his father, William Weber, operates a meat market there. He buys hogs and cattle from the Cooperative association here and was a visitor at the Wednesday sale.

The letter, dated January 7, reads: "I took these labels off some canned corn that our outfit had for supper tonight. Since I am from Ohio and a booster for the state I took this privilege to return them to your fair city."

"Knowing that in the past my father has had many dealings with your Coop and has always spoke so highly of you all that I thought you would like to know how far some of your products might travel."

"I have been in the Army some over two years but know that our business is still in contact with you through my father, William Weber, and brother, Glenn Weber, of Marietta."

"I can't tell but more than likely more of your pork and beef come to us than I know. It comes frozen and boneless from all the big packers."

"All I can say about my whereabouts is that I am on the Belgium-German border doing our part."

Renick Dunlap Writes About Observations On Trip To Mexico

"This country is all I expected it to be and then some", Renick Dunlap, Congo Farms, Kingston, writes from the Hotel Victoria, Taxco, Guerrero, Mexico.

Mr. Dunlap, who is now on his way to Florida after a visit in Mexico, makes some interesting observations about Mexican agriculture in a letter to Circleville friends.

He encloses in his letter travel folders on Taxco, one of the ancient towns of Mexico, and the Hotel Victoria, where he was staying, and Acapulco, "Where the hurry and worry and today's unrest is forgotten . . . where tired nerves relax and become attuned to the languor of the tropics . . . where every mood can be indulged," (the advertisements state).

The city of Taxco, state of Guerrero, is 100 miles south of Mexico City, "three attractive hours by motor over a paved road of everchanging scenery; winding through mountains and valleys up to 10,000 feet and gradually down to the tropics, across rivers, through sugarcane fields and banana plantations and again into the mountain region to Taxco, 5,600 feet high."

Here are some notes from Mr. Dunlap's letter:

"The city of Mexico is a great city, the climate very fine and the people not bad. I can think of certain Kiwanians who would enjoy here from Circleville, all mail is about 200 years behind the times. Oxen and wooden plows are used by most farmers. Saw one tractor. No farmer can own more than about 40 acres and he can not sell. If he leaves the land it goes back to the government and it gives it to another farmer.

"The president is elected for six years and then he is through forever. This is one system I think we should follow. You can buy most anything you have money to pay for and nothing is very cheap. Silverware has doubled in price in three years. Many things made in United States which we can not buy there are abundant but high in price."

"I haven't seen a paper from the States since I arrived. It takes about 11 days for mail to reach here from Circleville, all mail is censored and held up for days. I sent a wire from Taylor, Texas, and arrived here three days later. The telegram had not arrived.

"No rain here in winter. Rains every day about 6 p. m. in summer. Grow two crops per year. Plant in February and harvest in May and October."

"This is a great place for churches. Many of them more than 400 years old. No need of going to Europe to see old things. They have them here."

"They are having a religious fiesta here today. Big doings, bells ringing most of the time, fireworks, every one, dressed in gay colors, etc."

"International Rotary meets here today. Dick Wells, international president, is here at this hotel. There will be 200 tourists here today."

NATIONAL CHANGES
POLITICAL and economic problems press closer, along with our national war problems. Generally speaking, the same people are active in the administration at Washington that were in power before the last election, with the same ideas. The war naturally dominates everything, but interest in post-war prospects, in jobs, in the fate of American capitalism, are not far behind.

And there is nothing modest about many of the leaders engaged in the ambitious effort to create what they regard as a more orderly, fair and comfortable world. Frank demands are made for "full employment" and "sixty million jobs" for the fighting men to come home to, when the great wars are won. "Bills of rights" are hammered out that would have astonished old Adam Smith and also the founders of our republic. Millions of Americans, particularly in our organized labor groups, are inclined to support changes which at least skirt the edges of national socialism. Thus Americans may find themselves fighting not only two wars, but two ideologies—which in themselves represent a sort of warfare. We Americans do such things peaceably, but there may be extensive changes in our own system of life, work and government before things settle down again.

IN THE MIDDLE
It is unfortunate that so many Japanese-Americans who are loyal citizens, born in this country, and therefore on a par with other citizens, often find themselves ostracized and hardly able to make a living even when their services are needed for war work. This happens in some of our western areas especially, and even in the Middle West and East, where there is supposed to be little prejudice. Many of them, although not ashamed of their race except in the present war embarrassment, must wish they had been born without the physical characteristics of typical Japanese. Whether citizens of European origin like them or not, fairness requires that, when formally accepted as citizens, they be treated on a par with citizens of other races in a similar position. All such embarrassments, let us hope, will be lessened after the war.

Young King Peter of Yugoslavia may not amount to much, but he can always get a kick and headline out of firing another premier.
"Cotton Clothing Succor Planned," says the headlines, and now a lot of suckers feel better.

Inside WASHINGTON
Roosevelt Faces Crucial Test at 'Big Three' Meet
Shoesless Cuban Diplomat Finds Our OPA Efficient
Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt faces a crucial test as a fourth-term chief executive when he meets with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at the forthcoming "Big Three" conference.
Mr. Roosevelt will be especially hard-pressed if he seeks to urge world-wide adherence to the Atlantic Charter in the face of Russia's acknowledged determination to form a self-defense perimeter in eastern Europe and Britain's traditional plan to preserve the empire.
Diplomatic observers have repeatedly pointed out that Soviet foreign policy is crystal clear. Russia is determined to establish friendly states along her borders, establish puppet governments if necessary, and protect the Union against future aggression. Russian actions thus far have definitely followed this line.
With Britain still engaged in preserving her Mediterranean lifeline, Mr. Roosevelt is going to have a difficult time steering clear of the perils of power politics. In view of America's non-imperialistic policy, their president will have to sell the idealistic principles of the Atlantic Charter and the Dumbarton Oaks plan. If he fails, he may be one of the outstanding failures of history.
WEARING THEIR LAST PAIR of scuffed and threadbare shoes, Jose Antonio Fernandez de Castro, counselor of the Cuban legation in Moscow, recently landed in the U. S. with his wife from a transatlantic plane. The de Castros had discarded most of their personal belongings in Moscow so as to travel light.
De Castro was en route to Havana, but delayed the final lap of his trip to attempt to buy a pair of shoes for himself, and two for his wife. Not wishing to use diplomatic privileges to obtain American shoes, the Cuban diplomat obtained two ration books from the OPA. The de Castros were astonished at American efficiency—all but

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—No spyglass is needed to see what lies behind the proposal of Mr. Roosevelt to supplant Jesse Jones with Henry Wallace as commerce secretary for the fourth term.
It is quite evidently a move by the left-wing forces, under whose influence Mr. Wallace operates, to capture control of what they always have claimed was the Jones financial hegemony.

These forces, which the public sees mainly expressed in the prominence of Sidney Hillman in the CIO, would gain the inside track in the government mortgage and loan business amounting to billions and reaching out into every bank and many a business. Mr. Jones has built up what almost amounts to a $40,000,000,000 (billion) mortgage empire for the administration.

The job of commerce secretary has meant little to the public, until Jones took that chair it meant only management of government statistical bureaus relating to business, here and abroad, the bureau of standards, patent office, weather bureau and similarly unimportant (ideologically), etc.

But Jones brought into it the big lending agencies, RFC, Defense Plant Corporation, Defense Supplies, Metals Reserves, Federal Mortgage Association, Disaster Loan Corp and such which wielded a dominant financial influence out through the country.

The proposed transfer of all this to ultra leftwing influence is what shocked many senators into the comment which has been published.

Many other stories are being told, purporting to give the inside inspirations for the President's decision. Most of them relate to the personal feuds involved.

One of the great gunning games of the administration has long run between Wallace and Jones, some say this is the reason why Wallace asked for the post, merely to oust a bitter antagonist who defeated him in their earlier row.

Bad feelings also have existed between the President and Jones since the Texan had been unable to quiet antagonism to the fourth term in his home state. The leftist long have charged Jones with treachery, but never proved it, and I had personal experiences in the last campaign which proved to my satisfaction the Jones loyalty to the fourth term. His job which represents his life's work was at stake, he thought.

All this is superficial and inconsequential no matter which side you are on. That the President would be guided by personal antagonism in such a matter will be difficult to be believed generally. The average inner feeling in the senate, as I judge it—or at any rate the common sense viewpoint on the issue—is this:

Mr. Wallace did as much public work as anyone for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election, although there are others, possibly including Mr. Jones who did great inside work. Certainly Mr. Wallace deserved a job and a job of his choice.

But that he would ask for the commerce secretaryship is somewhat strange in itself. He is about as well fitted for it as say Mrs. Roosevelt who also did good campaign work (in the average congressional opinion, and mine.) She, too, was popular with the leftwing influence, no doubt equally dislikes Mr. Jones and has had about as much experience in the commerce.

Strictly speaking they are nodes, not glands, because glands secrete something and these do not. They are nodes which are stops or way stations in the lymphatic system, which is the accessory circulatory system of the body, carrying the fluid lymph to all parts. When you cut yourself and after the bleeding stops, a clear fluid oozes from the cut. That clear fluid is lymph coming, not from the blood vessels, but from the tissue spaces.

A Queer Kind of Circulation
The lymphatic system is a queer kind of circulation because it has no such thing as a heart—an engine to pump the fluid around. And half the time the lymph is not confined to any definite walls, such as the arteries, veins and capillaries, which hold the blood. Nor are its functions entirely understood. The only nutrient it carries is when the lymph vessels in the intestines take up fat after a heavy meal and they carry that to the large blood vessels in the chest.

The main function of the lymph seems to be to carry immune bodies and scavenger cells to fight infection and keep the tissues clear of germs and inflammation.

Nodes in the Neck
That is why the kernels, or nodes, arise in the neck. They are sort of stations along the route of the lymphatic vessels and when the traffic gets jammed and the line is filled with germs these stations swell up and proceed to kill off the unwelcome invaders on the spot.

The reason they enlarge in the neck most often is on account of the enormous number of possibilities of infection in the scalp and head region which this particular part of the lymphatic system drains. If a child gets lice in the scalp or any infection, the nodes under the angle of the jaw swell up. The same nodes drain infection from the middle ear. If a tooth becomes abscessed, the nodes under the jaw bone enlarge, and if a mouth or lower lip infection occurs the nodes just under the point of the jaw swell. The tonsils drain into the deeper nodes along the large muscles going crosswise from the skull to the breastbone—the sterno-mastoids.

The only other places on the body where lymph nodes swell up en masse is in the armpits, from any finger or arm infection, and in the groin from infection in the feet and legs.

Eliminate the Infection
The treatment of these conditions is to eliminate the original site of infection—de-louse the scalp, pull the tooth, remove the tonsils, etc. After that the swollen lymph nodes rapidly go down to normal size. Hot applications in the meantime help, but don't rub liniment on them too hard—not on account of the liniment, but the rubbing. Sometimes the infection is tuberculous—it used to be called scrofula—and in that case the nodes will often require to be removed surgically, but this condition is not nearly as common as it was in times past.

Sometimes, also, an infected lymph node breaks down and becomes full of pus and has to be drained, but this is also a minor matter.

Such swellings are not entirely confined to children, of course. Adults may have the same infections. But in adults the condition is likely to betoken something more serious.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. L. A.—If one lives in a small town where the water is very hard from none too pure a source and one drank none other than boiled water would it have a good, ill, or no effect? Would drinking mineral water counteract such an effect? Will drinking mineral water relieve any case of arthritis?

Answer: Drinking boiled water has no effect other than simply supplying the water needs of the body. It is not necessary to supplement distilled water with mineral water. The old theory was that mineral water acted favorably on arthritis by dissolving mineral or gouty deposits, but this idea has been abandoned.

CORPSES AT INDIAN STONES by Philip Wylie

SYNOPSIS
"Aggie" is the familiar name for Dr. Agamemnon T. Plum, 34, professor and bachelor, whose Aunt Sarah has dragged him into coming with her to Rainbow Lodge, the family summer home at Indian Stones. Upon arrival, Aggie found Henry H. Bogarty's card impaled by a hunting knife on the front door frame. "Hank" had wired Sarah, an old friend, suggesting "a new grubstake." "Jim" Calder, a broker, called. After a clash with Aggie, he left. Old John, the family butler, told Aggie that Calder had lost lots of money for investors. The knife, left on the porch rail, is missing. Late that night, Aunt Sarah became very ill, and Aggie motored to Dr. George G. Davis at Medicine Lodge. The doctor's daughter Danielle, escorted Aggie to her father who was working in his photographic dark room. Dr. Davis returned what was Aggie's. While the former examined Sarah, Aggie from the porch saw a dog or fox. Next morning, Aggie called on his aunt, quarantined for mumps. She said that Calder's son, Bill (whose marriage to Martha Drayton was one of Sarah's matches) seemed involved with Danielle, and she tells Aggie to keep tabs on them. She also reported that Jim Calder did not return home last night. At the club, Aggie meets its manager, Jack Browne, a boyhood playmate, who described his family tragedy and denounced Jim Calder. Then he introduced Beth Calder and her escort, Ralph Patton. Later Aggie is "bawled out" by Bill Calder for cutting in on a phone conversation between Bill and Danielle concerning a rendezvous at Garnet Knob to which Sarah sends her embarrassed nephew. He hears Bill say to Danielle: "You'll make trouble." Returning through the woods, Aggie makes a ghastly discovery in a deadfall for bears. Danielle comes up and he's just told her: "Jim Calder's in it—and he's dead."

CHAPTER TWELVE
Danielle stood still. She was shocked, but he could not discern how much or in what way. Her first words were secular, under the circumstances. "How—how long has he been there?"
"I'd say—since last night. Why?"
The girl was already recovering her self-possession—even her normal manner of venomous banter. "Albino. Everybody will have to have them. Me—for instance. I was at home, alone, a good deal of last night—because Dad was out on a call. How about yours?"
"I didn't say Calder was murdered."

She was silent again. Then she shrugged one shoulder. "Oh, no, you didn't. One simply assumes—I guess—that if Jim Calder died—it would be because somebody had done him in. He was marked for murder. There were times when I could have done it—when I was little—and he went away with Mother. Dad could have. I wonder if he did?"
"Are you talking that way because you think it's funny—or because you're rocky?"
"Because it's the way I talk. Can you say—offhand—just what is normal for this little meeting? Are you acting normally—popping out of the woods like a ghoul and telling me that Jim Calder, whom I've known and hated all my life, is dead in some sort of trap? Telling me as if you were giving the homework assignment for a class in biology? Let me look at him."

"That won't be necessary."

Her eyes still had color, even in the dusk, and it was a greenish color. Her lips smiled. "Maybe not. But two witnesses are better than one. Somebody else may find him for this—and change something, in advance. Besides, I've seen plenty of dead people and I'd like to see what I think myself. I inherit that quality from Dad."

He led her to the deadfall and leaned against a tree while she made a thorough reconnaissance. When she had finished, she said, "We better go down to the club and call the police."

"Yes."

"Somebody could have baited that thing— heaven knows why—I don't look as if it would catch a cow, let alone a bear. He may have fallen into it. Or—somebody may have hit him, and carried him up here, and made that thing, and dropped it on him to cover up the original blow."

"Then there'd be two sets of tracks."

Danielle glanced at him. "Not if the somebody put on Jim Calder's shoes—and carried the body. You'd have to be awfully good to be able to demonstrate that. The ground's hard."

"Sophomore biology homework," he said.

"What?"

"You're talking like the professor. You're a peculiar girl."

"I'm the ruins of what was a good one."

"Let's go to the club. We can discuss your character all summer. I was eavesdropping on you and Bill just now. Interesting—when the female undertakes to become a cad. Interesting—but unconvincing."

They went down the hillside.

Danielle made the call to the police, whom, she said, she knew. In any event, when she asked for "Wes" she was put through. She told the story tersely. When she had finished she turned to Aggie. "Wes wants us to round up everybody we can here. He'll go up on Garnet Knob with some men—and then join us. I'll start by getting Dad—and pick up anybody I can, on the way."

They left the library. Aggie went across to the desk. Through the archway, he could see numerous people in the dining room—families who were eating at the club until their kitchens were in working order—and individuals who used the club dining facilities all summer. He beckoned Jack from work. He told him what he had found and what had been done about it and what the police had requested. He kept his voice low. Jack listened with a blank, meaningless look. His face perspired and he wiped the back of his hand across it.

"All right," he said finally. "I'll go into the dining room and make an announcement. I don't know exactly what Wes wants—but if he said he wanted everybody—I'll have everybody." He gazed for a moment at Aggie. "Was the old man killed by accident—or on purpose, do you think?"

"I couldn't say."

Jack's jaw muscles set. "I hope it was on purpose!" he whispered. "I hope he saw it coming—and was frightened!" Then he drew a breath. "I'm sorry. I hated Calder. He shook himself. 'Have to get in to that old, soothing mood for the customer! You had the right

For Friday, January 26
JUDGING by lunar operations of outstanding significance in relation to the major planets, there will be continued concentrated effort in putting over important plans and programs, quite outside routine and customary fields of operation. Fresh fields and techniques seems to lure, inciting to sudden and drastic change of place or plans, and holding powerful influence on fortunes, destiny and affiliations. Industry, sound tactics, and advanced objectives attract the support of those in powerful places, probably in connection with public rather than private enterprise. ## Loyalty to the Kingdom

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 28 is Matthew 6:19-26. The Memory Verse being Ephesians 4:32. "Be ye kind one to another.")

THIS IS our last lesson on the sermon on the Mount. In this sermon Jesus lays down the rules of Christian conduct. Our lesson begins by showing the foolishness of collecting riches on earth of piling up money and other treasures that may be stolen or which spoil. Money is good in itself. It is necessary to carry on the business of the world. We need some and it is not unwise to save some for emergencies. Christ would not object even to a man becoming rich if he would not neglect his spiritual needs.

You may bury great wealth in the ground or put it in a bank and it may disappear. Every day, almost in the paper one reads of thieves who dig up gold or cheat a man out of money he has been saving. If he have no real character as a miser his life may be ruined or he may think so. But if he has a strong character, has faith and hope and lives as a kindly "good" man among his neighbors and friends he does not despair. His REAL wealth is intact. He can forget the riches he has lost and live on with faith in his future.

Treasure "in Heaven"
His real treasure is "laid up in heaven," where "neither moth doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal."

"Therefore I say unto you. Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body more than raiment?" He spoke of the birds who sow not neither do they reap, yet they are cared for. He speaks of the lilies of the field so beautiful, but they "neither toil nor spin." As you cannot add one bit to your own stature by worrying about it why should you fret?

Jesus did not mean that we should not think of our physical necessities and provide for the best of our ability, but that we should have faith while doing our best.

"Judge not that ye be not judged." Most of us recognize a bad character from a good one in the people with whom we come in contact but we need not judge the bad ones harshly. Remembering our own faults, we should try to understand why people grow up to be what we call "undesirable" characters. The wrong home environment, bad companions, many things incline people to wrong living standards. How would we have been if conditions had been the same for us as for them?

Trying to understand and to help, if possible, is the attitude we should take toward them.

Prayer Important

Jesus stresses the importance of prayer—of constant contact with "Our Father which art in heaven" to keep our faith strong and our actions humble—in other words to help us keep in the Right Road.

No parent would if his child asked for bread hand him a stone or if he asked for fish would give him a serpent, said Jesus. "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?"

It seems that the whole sermon is summed up in the words "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets." "Enter ye in at the strait gate for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat."

"Because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." The narrow way may not seem so pleasant, but it is the safe way that leads to where we want to go. It leads to true joy and happy satisfying life.

We are warned against "false prophets" who come to us in "sheep's clothing" meaning with pleasing personalities. We shall know them by their works. Their actions will show us the true prophets from these false ones. "Whoever heareth these sayings of mine, I will liken him unto a wise man which built his house upon a rock."

When storms came and beat upon that house it stood firm. Those who heard His words and heeded them were not like a man who built his house on the sand so that when the rains and floods came they destroyed that house.

When Jesus ended these sayings people were astonished because He spoke with such authority.

He spoke with authority because He knew life and what is worthwhile in it. He loved people and tried to help them and to point out ways which would bring them joy and peace instead of unhappiness and strife. He so loved the world that He was willing, not only to preach, but to give up His own life for it.

HAPPY CHANDLER URGES BASEBALL BE CONTINUED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Baseball unexpectedly found a friend today in Sen. Albert B. Chandler, D. Ky., who said that if necessary, congress should "go to bat" for continuation of the game. Chandler, usually regarded as an

BRANCH RICKEY SAYS FUTURE IS UP TO BASEBALL

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y., Jan. 26—President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers admonished baseball men today that the government expected them "to find the manpower to continue operations," or it would shut down the parks as it did the race tracks.

"The government doesn't want to stop us by indirection, I am sure, when it could so easily do it directly," he said. "Therefore, it is baseball's job to continue as long as possible. Losses will make no difference."

Rickey, discussing current manpower problems with baseball writers yesterday at their third annual entourage to the Dodgers' spring training facilities here, said that "so far as I know, we will have sufficient players to operate."

"Whatever reasons the game had to exist through previous war time seasons still remain," he said.

Turning specifically to the Dodgers' own manpower problems, Rickey left his listeners wondering how he could be so optimistic. He announced that Pitcher Ben Chapman had been reclassified 1-A by his Montgomery, Ala., draft board and that he probably would be inducted "within a week."

Outfielder and utility infielder Luis Olmo, one of the top players during the 1944 season, has been placed in 1-A at his home in Puerto Rico and probably will not be around next season. Erwin Rudolph, right-handed pitcher from St. Paul, who was slated to be a Dodger regular, recently was inducted.

In addition, three other Dodgers, Pitcher Rube Melton, and infielders Jack Bolling and Eddie Miksis have gone into the armed services since the first of the year and others probably will be called, he said.

His views were "directly opposite" to those of his colleague from Kentucky, Rep. Andrew J. May, house military affairs committee chairman, who urged that baseball be shut down for the duration.

"These 400 or 500 players surely can be spared to keep the great American game going and provide some relaxation for war workers and give an indication to the boys on the fighting fronts that everything is all right at home," he said.

Men on the fighting fronts, he said, were hoping that baseball would be continued.

"As an old baseball player and football coach, I don't think any sensible person believes that baseball should be stopped and it is my earnest and sincere hope that the officials will decide to continue the sport," he said.

Chandler said he also believed that baseball should be permitted to use rejected men because baseball is the most essential work they can do.

BASEBALL FILM TO BE RELEASED FEBRUARY 1

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—An educational movie, "Inside Baseball," presenting 11 major league players showing the proper baseball technique by slow motion demonstration will be released Feb. 1 by the American League on a free-loan basis. Lew Fonseca of the league's promotional department announced today.

Designed for high school and college coaches and players, amateur baseball organizations and instructional schools, the three-reel movie shows Bob Feller, Red Ruffing and Lefty Grove in pitching demonstrations; Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Hank Greenberg, hitting; Joe Gordon, Frank Crosetti and Joe Kuhel, infield play; Bill Dickey, catching, and George Case, base running.

The movie, written and directed by Fonseca, will be loaned free of charge for one to three days.

FARMERS BACK DRIVES AGAINST HARMFUL FOXES

Fox drives, such as the one to be conducted Saturday in Walnut township, meet with the approval of farmers who have suffered from raids by the animals. The fox population in Ohio has increased to such proportions that farmers are strenuously complaining about the great amount of damage being done to livestock and poultry. A solution of the vexing problem was discussed at the January meeting of the board of directors of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation.

The board favors legislation which would curtail the fox population, even to the extent of payment of a bounty, if it can be done without permanently removing the fox from the game list, and also that they may be hunted without a license.

The board also favors legislative authority which would authorize county commissioners to pay from the general fund for damages done by foxes, in a similar manner in which damages done by dogs are now paid from the dog and kennel fund.

The fox menace includes mass killings of poultry flocks, small pigs, lambs and in some cases, grown sheep.

All hunters interested in participating in the fox drive in Walnut township are asked to report promptly at 12 noon Saturday at Hedges Chapel church. C. E. Webb, of the state conservation department who is organizing the drive, reminded all hunters to bring shotguns and hunting licenses.

OHSAA TO PLAN CAGE TOURNEYS ON SATURDAY

COLUMBUS, Jan. 26—The state board of the Ohio High School Athletic Association will meet tomorrow to complete arrangements for the annual Ohio scholastic basketball championship tournaments this spring.

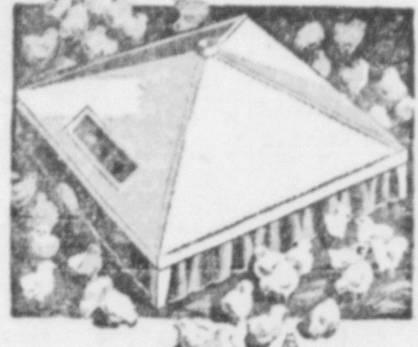

H. W. Emswiler, athletic commissioner, said that the board would attempt to fix sectional sites and tournament admission costs.

The board also is scheduled to consider proposals for a memorial to the late athletic commissioner, H. R. Townsend, who died last summer. Proposals under consideration include scholarships at Wilmington college and Ohio State university, and awards for scholastic athletic competitions.

- SARAH BURTON FEATURED
- One of England's ranking stars, Sarah Burton, will be the featured player on "Grand Central Station," Saturday. Miss Burton's last American appearance was with Luise Rainer in the revival of Sir

Berry Kroeger, whose new play, "The Tempers," started on Broadway January 24; Fay Baker, of "Harriet," and Herbert Berghoff, recently featured in the Christmas season revival of "Little Women."

JORY STARRED

Victor Jory, returned from a one-week vacation, stars in "Beautiful Dreamer," an original story of the life of Stephen Collins Foster, on "The Matinee Theatre," Sunday. The script, written by Jean Holloway, emphasizes the romantic side of the famous composer's life. Excerpts from Foster's works will be sung by a choir especially assembled for this broadcast.

LUM AND ABNER VISIT

A popular duo and a famous trio get together when Lum and Abner visit on Sunday, January 28. The boys try to sing but then stick to drama; the girls try to act but quickly turn to rhythm with "Begin the Beguine" and "I'm in a Jam with Baby." Helping out on the comedy and music are Film Comedian George "Gaby" Hayes; Victor Schoen and his orchestra; and Foy Willing and his Riders of the Purple Sage.

Jerry Wayne, who'll appear on the "March of Dimes" television program, was an infantile paralysis victim at the age of twelve. Now completely recovered from the effects of the dread polio germ, the baritone singing star of the Ed Wynn show is devoting most of his time to the campaign.

Gracie Allen has been bothered by her daughter repeatedly asking for a chance to do a radio show ever since she was old enough to listen to the radio. Gracie has finally given in and has promised her a chance to appear on George and Gracie's own show this Spring.

City Water Supply Plentiful Despite General Shortage

LOWERED LEVEL CAUSES TROUBLE THROUGH STATE

Darby Creek Continues To Meet Requirements Of Circleville

While the surrounding area is suffering from a water shortage Circleville has a good supply. H. B. Denman, manager of the local Ohio Water Service company plant, said Thursday that there is an ample supply of water to meet the city's needs and that no shortage is anticipated. "We have never had a shortage of water and do not expect any," he said.

The Circleville plant source of supply is Darby creek, one of the few streams in the county which always has water. The stream is fed mostly by springs, which gives a year-round supply. The pumping station is located about two miles west of the Scioto river.

Ample Supply
Although the city supply is ample, some residents of Pickaway county have been suffering from a water shortage. Icy weather of the past few weeks has complicated the situation. Many small streams which are used to water stock have been frozen and others are dry. Melting snow and ice the last few days have helped relieve the trouble slightly.

Many wells went dry last summer and few of them have regained their previous water level. Fall rains helped refill some of them but not much of the winter's snow has melted and soaked into the underground water sources.

Lowering of the water level all over the state has been noted the past few years. Efforts are being made through conservation practices to help restore the water level but it will take years of concerted effort to solve the problem.

Wells Go Dry
Most communities which depend on wells for all their water supply face water problems now, unless the wells are unusually deep. In many places wells have been used for years and supplied plenty of water, but at present there is a shortage because of the lowered water level. At Chillicothe an ample supply is being maintained although the water level is 13 feet below what it was when the wells being used were drilled in the Spring of 1941. Recent dry years with under-average precipitation have contributed to this condition, it is said, although increased consumption of water has played a big part in producing the result.

Other nearby cities have a shortage of water. The condition in Columbus has reached a critical condition. Many plants have been forced to curtail operations and homes in the city are almost without water, it was reported.

ROSS DISCUSSES WORLD AFFAIRS FOR ROTARIANS

E. W. Ross, maintenance superintendent of the Container Corporation, told of his experiences in various parts of the world at the Rotary Club meeting Thursday in Pickaway Arms.

Mr. Ross, introduced as "a world wide traveler", said that a big factor neglected by most people is "international understanding". Americans do not understand for-sign ways and customs and dealings with them can not be successful without such understanding, he said.

The speaker said that every nation is going to have a "selling" job after the war. Germany must be dealt with very firmly, he declared. He said we will never be able to deal with the Japs and that they should be wiped out. In our world wide settlement we may have a little difficulty with Mexico, but a lot more with South America, he stated. We will be forced to tolerate a few things from other countries because of their habits which are different from ours, he said.

A visitor at the meeting was Lt. John R. Woods.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

plex high finance involved in the New Deal's mortgage and bond business.

From the administration's own standpoint of keeping financial forces marshaled efficiently in the government interest, it would seem to me to be impossible for Mr. Wallace to do a good job.

The President unquestionably has placed a higher estimate than is average here on the man whom his campaign manager told him was not sufficiently popular in the country to be carried on the fourth term ticket in the recent elections.

What I cannot understand is why Mr. R. did not offer Mr. Wallace instead of Mr. Jones a choice of ambassadorship—a line of work in Mexico and China.
